The Homestead Playhouse Presents Annie Weisman's "Be Aggressive"

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (February 26, 2007) – Tickets for The Homestead Playhouse at DC Ranch production of "Be Aggressive" are on sale now for the Friday, March 9 and Saturday, March 10 productions, which both begin at 7 p.m.

"Be Aggressive" is a coming of age teen drama by Annie Weisman. Laura, a 17-year-old cheerleader lost her mother in a car accident and is thrust into the role of caregiver for her precocious younger sister and her brittle father. She embarks on a journey to attend cheer camp at the "Spirit Institute of the South" with a fellow cheerleader and returns home with hope and renewal.

"This production is a satirical drama about a young girl and the ever shifting world she lives in," said Ami Angelowicz, Homestead Playhouse artistic director. "We are excited about the talented cast who has worked hard to put on this great production."

The Homestead Playhouse at DC Ranch held an open casting call in early January. The production will include local talent that includes in the lead roles: Alexandra Comeaux, 15, as Laura; Sarah Ehrman, 15, as Leslie; and Marissa Lyons, 13, as Hannah; all three actors are Scottsdale residents.

Tickets for "Be Aggressive" are $15 for the public, and $10 for DC Ranch residents. For more information or to purchase tickets, contact The Homestead Community Center at (480) 585-1641.

The Homestead Playhouse is a community theater group based in DC Ranch created by the DC Ranch Community Council. Performances, which feature casts made up of greater Valley community members and are open to the public, are held at the 7,000-square-foot Homestead Community Center located at 9797 E. Union Hills Drive.
